

Short Films by Star Rating

Theatrically released motion pictures of 40 minutes or less

For every great feature, there's a great short, and this list attempts to chronicle just some of those tiny masterpieces – and disasters. For films to make this list, they must have played in at least one film festival or showcase, or similar theatrical venue, for a paying audience. Films shown only on television (or available only on DVD, Blu-ray, video or online) are reserved for my Television list. Also not included here are student films and similar projects that have never been presented at a theatrical venue that charged admission to viewers who were not associated with the making of the film, or the studio or school that produced it. (Please note that this is slightly more lenient than the qualifications for the feature-film lists, which require that a film of more than 40 minutes in length play at least two major festivals, or have a limited or general release.) Theatrical newsreels (pre-television) and theatrically released trailers are not eligible for this list, although mini-documentaries and travelogues from the 1930s-1950s are. Short films shown at theme parks, such as Disney World, are eligible, but not if they rely on animatronic/interactive/live elements. Shorts produced for timed competitions, such as 48-hour or 24-hour projects, are not included here, unless those films were subsequently screened at other venues.

The ratings system is basically the same as that of the feature-film list, but there are no half or quarter stars. That difference is due to simplification and also to the fact that it's admittedly difficult, and perhaps somewhat unfair, to compare a 2-minute film to a 40-minute one using quarter stars. (So please keep in mind there is some variation with each star rating.) I discourage you from comparing a 5-star short with a 5-star feature, as they are different animals. Instead, please compare shorts to shorts, and features to features. This list also differs from the feature-film lists in that many of these short films were directed and written by amateurs, first-timers and students working with little time and virtually no budget. Therefore, I would strongly suggest that you avoid condemning young filmmakers who produce a 1-star or 0-star short film. Indeed, it might be more appropriate when judging a student film to treat a 2-star rating as a thumbs-up, a 1-star as mediocre, and a 0-star as a learning experience on the road to better things.

Also note that, somewhat unlike the feature-film list, I give some short films more credit than they deserve here, if judged by today's standards, by virtue of their historic contribution to cinema. Examples include the first motion ever captured by a single-lens camera (Louis Le Prince's Roundhay Garden Scene from 1888) and films by the Lumière Brothers, Edwin Porter, Georges Méliès and Alice Guy, and, to a lesser extent, the Biograph movies of D.W. Griffith. (On a historical note, this list does not recognize Louis Le Prince's Man Walking Around a Corner from 1887 as a true film by the modern definition, as it was shot on a 16-lens camera, not a single-lens one. Also not included here are the stop-motion films made by Eadweard Muybridge using multiple cameras, the earliest of which was a race-horse study in 1878. However, these experiments are worth mentioning as links between single-lens camera technology and the magic-lantern and still-photograph sequences of the mid 19th century.)

Short films originally released in theaters as part of a feature are not listed here, even if they later received separate releases outside of the feature format. Examples include Disney's Peter and the Wolf as part of Make Mine Music, and Disney's Wind in the Willows as part of The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad. This means no content appears both on this list and the feature lists.

Another shortcoming of this list is that it does not attempt – and never could – to chronicle all the short films I've ever seen, unlike the feature-film lists, which do just that. It's simply too tough. Making it even more difficult to compile such a list is the fact that the industry makes it much too difficult to see new shorts after they have played at film festivals or other similar venues. Sure, you can find them online or on poor-quality DVDs, but that's just not good enough. For this reason, I passionately support fellow film lovers who advocate a system of greater exposure for short films – perhaps a sort of Netflix just for little movies, or a return to shorts in mainstream cinemas. And I encourage you to contribute your voices to this cause – and to support studios such as Disney that play shorts before their features. Sadly, the over-priced American film-going experience now consists of a bombardment of loud and obnoxious crap – commercials, TV promos, dumbed-down trailers and other junk – so it just makes sense, both financial and aesthetic, to include a good short film among this pre-feature smorgasbord.
